COUNTERFEIT MEDICINES - SURVEY REPORT (2006)

Counterfeit medicines pose an ever-greater threat to public health in Europe today. In an effort to adequately measure the scope of the phenomenon and reduce the inherent risks, the Council of Europe has commissioned a survey on issues related to this particularly disquieting form of fraud. This report covers, among others: the current and estimated market and trade matters; the status of pharmaceutical regulation; national and international co-operation between authorities, the industry and wholesalers; detection systems and procedures; the adequacy of legal, judicial and administrative systems; and professional training in the matter. It also sets out to define counterfeit medicine and pharmaceutical crime.

ETHICAL EYE - ANIMAL WELFARE (2006)

Just how much do animals suffer? Does legislation make a difference to animal welfare and do economic factors hinder its improvement? The treatment of animals has long been a subject of debate, yet attitudes towards animal welfare still differ greatly and genuine concern for animals has only really developed over the last few decades. The general public is concerned by this issue and has gradually started to exert pressure on those who use animals to change their ways and on politicians to introduce new legislation. This book about animal welfare takes a detailed look at the ethical issues, religious viewpoints and the attitudes of different countries towards animal welfare, as well as the Council of Europe conventions and other European instruments aimed at tackling this issue at an international level.
